Fleure Presner has decades-long experience in her field of professional modeling. At a young age, her interest in modeling quickly turned into a profession. It gave her exciting opportunities beginning in her hometown of Toronto, then to Milan and Paris, finally landing her in New York City.

For as long as she's been modeling, she's also been an actress in commercials scoring beauty campaigns and a large variety of advertising assignments.

She studied at FIT for technical fittings and at the Neighborhood Playhouse in a two-year conservatory with Richard Pinter, for acting. She has also been a student for Method acting.

Fleure is a seasoned model with real-life knowledge. She strives to portray a down-to-earth style, sometimes glamorous, and a woman who is great with kids and all aspects of family life. She's quick to smile, and incorporate her own life into shoots. She's eager to advocate for breast health and cancer awareness, having been a breast cancer survivor herself.

She successfully adapted during the big challenges of "our times", and continues to embrace the adversity by self-taping for clients and auditioning from her home studio. Her background is what makes Fleure's appearance so diverse. She's mixed Eastern European, Jewish, and West African. Her mother is from Ghana.

Fleure enjoys her daily yoga practice and meditation sessions. She loves spending time with her family, cooking, playing with her 8-year old daughter, and catching up with relatives who live abroad.
